

LINCOLN GIVEN PRAISE AT SITE OF NEW TOMB

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12 (12th)—The Springfield, home town of Abraham Lincoln, in the material, from which he was first in Congress and then to the White House, shared elaborate memorial services in honor of the 122nd anniversary of his birth.

Visitors, who average 100,000 a year, thronged his home and Oak Ridge cemetery, where the reconstruction of his tomb is being completed to be dedicated this year by President Hoover.

THREE GOVERNORS ATTEND.
Participants in the ceremonies in the state arsenal included Governor J. L. Emerson, Governor Brucker of Michigan, the ambassador from Japan, Katsui Tobei, and Governor William M. Murray of Oklahoma.

The chief celebration was in the County Court House. Judge Henry Horner of Chicago was the principal speaker. Another was Carl Sandburg, the poet, and author of the "Lincoln of Prairie Years."

MARTERS SCORED.
Lincoln tomb visitors discussed Edgar Lee Masters, who pictures Lincoln as only a shrewd politician, unkind, and unscrupulous. Most of them disagreed heartily with Masters.

Some said that William Allen, one-time law partner of Lincoln, started the Anna Burdick sweetheart story after Lincoln's assassination in 1865, when Mary Todd Lincoln, who carried no opportunity to smother her.

LINCOLN GIVEN CITY'S TRIBUTE
A wreath to commemorate the 122nd anniversary of Lincoln's birthday was placed on the statue in this square in Park square by city officials today.

Julian D. Rainey, assistant corporation counsel for the City of Boston, and Station H. White, acting Director of Public Celebrations, performed the annual customary tribute for Mayor Curley.

In the past years has been the chief figure in the ceremonies.

Another wreath from the Massachusetts Department of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War was placed at the foot of the statue earlier in the day.

In the schools of Greater Boston appropriate exercises are being held to commemorate the anniversary of the great American leader.

FATE OF DROUTH FUNDS HANGS ON HYDE

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Sen. Watson, Republican floor leader, and Sen. Goff, Republican West Virginia, today conferred with President Hoover concerning Secretary Hyde's answer to a Senate resolution asking how the agriculture department would administer the proposed $20,000,000 drouth relief loan fund.

Upon coming from the President's office, Watson said in his opinion the Senate's action on the relief fund would depend almost entirely on Hyde's answer.

The Republican floor leader would not reveal the President's attitude on the question.

Senator Smoot, Republican Utah, who is in charge of the bill, said he expected Hyde's reply during the day.

The Republicans have urged a prompt reply as to whether farmers' borrowers could use loans for the purchase of food and clothing.

VOICE OF POPE COMES CLEAR TO BOSTON'S THOUSANDS

Accompanying the broadcast of any of the program features. During the periods of silence with HVT there was a fading hum, not unlike the sound of airplanes overhead borne considerable distance on a breeze. During the actual speaking there was a slight intermittent heterodyne whistle which did not effect the reception to any marked extent.

STUDIO ON AIR FIRST

The Vatican City station was heard for the first time following a short program of music broadcast from the NRC studio at 3:30 o'clock.

"Hullo, hullo, hullo," came the voice of the announcer in accented English, "this is Station HVT."

At 3:13 it was announced: "We have just been informed that the Pope is in sight, so please stand by for the opening of the program."

Again, at 3:18, there came an "Hullo, hullo, hullo," from across the ocean, and then: "I hope you are receiving us very well. We are now expecting His Holiness the Pope, any minute."

A minute later: "We have just been informed that His Holiness the Pope will be here in exactly five minutes' time."

At 3:23 and again at 3:27 there were announcements from the American chain system studios that the American audience was tuned to the Vatican City station which was awaiting the arrival of the Pope.

FANFARE OF TRUMPETS
Exactly at 3:28, on program schedule, there came from across the sea the fanfare of the silver trumpets faced to the four corners of the world. Every note, high-pitched, was audible—the trumpet announcement that the Pope had arrived.

At 3:31, from HVT, the announcement in English: "We are now stopping all machinery during the arrival and inspection of the station by His Holiness the Pope."

American station studio headquarters came on the air with a brief description of the new Vatican City radio station which was 45 feet high, and at 3:35 came another American announcement that the Pope was still inspecting the Vatican station.

It was 3:40 when HVT was heard again: "We are now on the air again, the machinery being officially inspected by His Holiness the Pope. The Holy Father is now proceeding to the telegraph room, where he will send the station signal in the Morse code."

Five minutes later, came HVT, very clearly: "Hullo, hullo, hullo, His Holiness is very interested in looking at the automatic sender. He is going to send the call in a few minutes."

MARCONI ON AIR
The call of the station was not audible.
At 3:48 Senator Guglielmo Marconi, the Italian wireless wizard who supervised construction of the Vatican City station, came on the air to introduce the staff.

His brief speech in Italian and English was as clear as a bell. Turning over the microphone to Pius XI, he declared:

"I pray you to let your voice be heard all over the world. There followed in English, German, Polish and Spanish and a station announcement telling listeners the Pope had given 'His Apostolic blessing to Rome and to the whole world—to the rich and to the poor, to the workers and employers, to the well and the suffering.'"

STUDENTS TRANSLATE
The translators of the station announcement were Gregorian University students.
"I am glad to welcome you and give you my thanks for this station," the Pope addressed Signor Marconi. Marconi, accepting his election to membership of the Pontifical Academy of Sciences, said:

England Lashed by Terrific Gale

London, Feb. 12 (AP)—One of the fiercest gales of this stormy winter blew over England and adjacent seas during the night. The wind had a velocity of 50 and 60 miles, but frequently blew more than 70 miles an hour.

The channel was lashed into furious waves which seemed estimated to be 30 feet high. Mid-channel and transchannel steamers had alarming passages. On shore many trees were uprooted.

In Three Weeks New And Different Medicine Brought Strength And Energy To This Man

"Konjola certainly does all that is claimed for it." Times without number this has been said by those who, to their everlasting joy, put Konjola to the test and found it to be the very medicine they needed.

MR. FRANK COX

And Konjola has succeeded even in the most severe cases where all other medicines and treatments failed to bring more than mere temporary relief. Time and again Konjola has brought amazing relief in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. But find out about Konjola for yourself. Read what Mr. Frank Cox, R. F. D. No. 1, North Stamford, says about Konjola. Study his experience, then resolve to find out the whole story of Konjola from the Konjola Man at the nearest drug store, 24 Roulley Square, Boston. Here is the statement of Mr. Cox in his own words:

"Konjola is a wonderful medicine. It proved its worth to me in three weeks. I had trouble with my head, and there was a constant ringing in my ears. I had headaches and after eating I felt exhausted and sleepy. I had no pep or ambition; soon a speck appeared under my eyes, and I knew that I needed a good tonic to bring me back to health. In just three weeks Konjola had me on the right track. Headaches disappeared, dizziness and sleepiness vanished. I eat heartily and never suffer any distress. Konjola surely is everything that is claimed for it."

In tens of thousands of cases Konjola has brought relief when given a fair trial of from six to eight weeks. All that is asked for Konjola is that it be given a chance—and Konjola welcomes any test, no matter how severe.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's—deputy for Epstein Drug Co., Boston, where one and all may hear about Konjola and its merits. A FREE SAMPLE GIVEN.

HAL FOSH'S WAR MEMOIRS

HAL FOSH ON U. S. PROPS REACH FRANCE IN 2 MONTHS

In yesterday's installment Marshal Fosh told how, toward the close of the Spring of 1918, France and England were finding great difficulty in obtaining the men necessary to make good the losses in their armies on the Western Front. He emphasized the great drain on their forces because of the heavy German drives and drew a vivid picture of the urgent need for IMMEDIATE HELP in men power from America. He also recorded the historic victory of the American First Division in capturing Cantigny from the Germans, which demonstrated the efficacy of the American soldier in battle and kindled new enthusiasm among the Allied forces. He also told of the employment of American troops for meeting new German drives on the Western Front.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOSH
Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War
(Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Motz)
During the middle of April, 1918, at a time when the crisis in both French and British effectiveness was particularly acute, the American Army in France comprised only five fighting divisions. One of these, the 1st, was about to join the First French Army, three others (2nd, 26th and 42nd) were holding quiet sectors of the front, and the remaining one (32nd) had temporarily distributed its infantry among French divisions to complete its training.

This infantry constituted, therefore, the sole direct help which the American Army was furnishing to fill the gaps in the French Army. Considering the black troops which were serving with our divisions, the total amounted to 23,000 infantrymen, which, as can be seen, was far from meeting such pressing needs as ours.

During the month of April the infantry of two other American divisions (34 and 35th) was due to arrive in France, but these could not be incorporated in French units without less than from three to five weeks in what concerned the British Army, the needed troops in America were limited, for the moment, to the infantry on the ocean.

We thus saw that to replace their heavy losses in infantry, the French and British armies could count on an immediate help of more than 70,000 American troops.

The evident feasibility of this result demanded that the mission which was to be accomplished be made in the matter of transporting the American Army to France be corrected. What was needed above all was that during several months the Allied States should send to France only infantry, to the exclusion of all other arms.

By this means only could the British and French armies profit from the 300,000 men which were needed to get their crushing crush on the Western Front.

The Government, in fact, was already informed and seemed disposed to accept the proposition of the commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies. It remained to convince General Pershing, who was full of the idea of sending a great American army as soon as possible, although he was not, it is true, fully aware of the urgency of our present necessities.

Pershing's Attitude
U. S. Agrees to Pour Infantry Into France

Me and I readily fell into accord regarding this point in the course of a conference held at the headquarters of the American army on April 23, when it was attended by General Bliss. After a close discussion it was decided that the American troops to be brought over in May and June should be in principle, first of all, infantry.

For the month of May the question was settled there and then. For the month of June it was agreed that a definite decision would be taken a little later; but from now on it was understood that the government at Washington would prepare to send the infantry of at least six divisions to France.

This meeting at the same time opened the urgent necessity of directing and co-ordinating to the advantage of the coalition the effort being put forth by the United States, desiring it as to assist it to meet the needs of the army, co-ordinate it so as to prevent any antagonism between such as that concluded between General Pershing and Lord Milner at the conference on April 23, from having the effect of driving away that effort.

As a word which ought to be done was for the Allied Governments to study the question of American effectiveness as a whole and whatever decisions were taken, take them together.

This was done at Abbeville, on May 1 and 2, when the following arrangements were agreed to:

1. The British Government undertook to furnish the tonnage necessary to transport from the United States to France 130,000 men in May and 150,000 in June, consisting solely of infantry and machine-gun detachments.

2. The American tonnage would be used for the transport of artillery, engineers, services, etc.

3. A further examination of the situation would be made at the beginning of June and the program for the future decided upon.

It can be seen that these decisions were of the highest importance.

this had to be watched over closely, to maintain confidence and pose of time were to be avoided.

We knew that the enemy had large numbers of troops available from 75 to 80 divisions, according to the intelligence branch of General Headquarters—that is, in the front line. The German plan for his first attack between the Scarpe and the Oise. Where would they suddenly appear themselves? We searched the horizon, but the mystery remained unsolved.

Field-Marshal Haig believed he was menaced with a new German offensive between Amiens and the sea, with its principal effort either on Albert or on Ypres. General Petain likewise inclined to this view. Indeed, he no longer feared an enemy attack in Champagne, and in the absence of confirmation from other sources, he put so faith in the tales of prisoners who, on May 19th and 20th, declared that an important German offensive was in course of preparation between the Oise and Thénies.

While closely following the investigation of my subordinates, I did not propose that the activity of the Allied Armies should be limited to calculating and discussing the enemy's intentions.

Another task, and an urgent one imposed itself, that of preparing to pass in our turn to the offensive.

"The offensive alone will enable us to bring the battle to a victorious close and, by seizing the initiative, assert our moral ascendancy."

But at a moment when we were obliged to severly husband our forces, this offensive must take the form of a surprise attack. The sacrifice entailed. Two French divisions fulfilled this condition:

(1) The ground between the Oise and the Somme. This offered the possibility of a combined attack by the French Third and First Armies and the right of the British Fourth Army, with the object of disengaging the Paris-Amiens railway line and the Amiens sector of communications.

(2)—The Lys region. Here a combined attack of the left of the British Army, the Second British Army and the Army Detachment of the North, would take as a objective the freeing of Ypres and the Bethune coal basin.

Preparation for the two offensive were to be made simultaneously and without delay. If the enemy did not attack, they would furnish the means of surprising him by a powerful blow. In a final attack, the Germans would be completely in the hands of the Allies.

direction and they thus reached the river without striking a blow. Here, thanks solely to the rapidity of their advance, they were able to seize all the bridges between Valenciennes and Pont-à-Mousson before even the demolition charges could be prepared.

From that moment on, our situation was serious. "At 11 a. m. no further illusion was possible." The three divisions in reserve that were still available were sent to army corps and employed against the two wings of the German attack in an endeavor to at least delay it.

In the center, however, the enemy, moving freely in a breach 10 miles wide, pressed on to the Vesle, which he reached in the evening between Courlandon and Reims. The possession of Fismes was still disputed by the leading units of a French division (134th) which had been rushed up in motor trucks.

The error which we had already seen produced on the Somme the 13th of March was here repeated.

A stream like the Aisne or the Somme, lying some six or seven miles from a first position, constitutes an obstacle which noisily up any successful attack of the enemy and forces him to recommence a methodical artillery action, provided the defender has taken suitable measures for security on this line—such as leaving a company or even a section at a squad at each bridge, whose sole duty it would be to cover and defend the passage.

The enemy, on arriving in front of the stream, is obliged to prepare a fresh artillery action in order to force it; this means a whole new operation for him.

For a commander who wishes to keep his freedom of action on the far side of a river or on the banks, it is an indispensable precaution that its bridges be guarded by a carefully organized system of defense, so that they may be always at his disposal. This precaution was not right in the Aisne as it had been in the Somme.

In tomorrow's installment in the Boston Evening American Marshal Fosh tells of the preparations to meet the German drive toward Paris.

Enemy Attack Germans Hurt 50 Divisions Into New Offensive

At 8:40 a. m. the enemy's infantry advanced to the assault on a front of 33 miles between Reims and Leulilly. Preceded by a dense creeping barrage and supported at various points by tanks, it penetrated by a single rush far into the French positions. The surprise had been practically complete and the results were most important.

Thirty German divisions (Seventh Army, General von Boehm, and the right of the First Army, General von Below) had been concentrated and transported to the point of application without being observed by the adversary, and now hurled themselves against the Chemin des Dames.

This mighty mass of attack found in front of it only seven Allied divisions in the first line, four French and three British, supported in rear by two French and one British divisions.

Their resistance was easily overcome. In the center, particularly, the 22d French Division and the 50th British Division were literally submerged under the German flood. Rapidly gaining possession of the Chemin des Dames, the enemy pushed right up to the Aisne. At 4 p. m. he was in possession of that river, from Valley to Oesilly.

Unfortunately, the Commander of the Sixth Army, the very beginning of the attack, sent almost the whole of the 15th Division, which was back on the Aisne, to the support of the first line, thus leaving along a wide front, the important position of the Chemin des Dames, almost wholly unguarded.

By a fatal chance, the Germans made their main effort in this

NOTES FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

In a year in which all classes of business have encountered many difficulties, the Company has made gratifying progress. New policies paid for show an increase of $51,227,675, both the ordinary and group departments making substantial gains.

Total assurances in force show an increase of $462,464,342.58. This gain represents a very high rate of prosperity, indicating the high value placed by our policyholders or their contracts with the Company in a period of extreme financial pressure.

The number of policies and group assurance certificates outstanding passed the million mark during the year.

The total net income shows an increase of $13,804,544.54.

The total payments to policyholders and beneficiaries since organization equal the total assurances in force in the Company's fifth year (ten years ago).

The mortality among our policyholders has been highly favorable.

The rate of interest earned on the mean invested assets was 6.44 per cent.

Profits paid to policyholders during the year amounted to $2,064,251.04.

In a year of almost unprecedented business depression the outstanding quality of the investments has been strikingly shown. The actual cash dividends received on the total common stocks held by the Company were $269,103.84 in excess of the dividends payable on those identical shares in 1929. Even on the basis of the low prices at the close of the year our common stock holdings show a substantial excess of market value over cost.

Profits to policyholders entitled to participate during the ensuing year will be again allotted on the scale as present in operation.

The special Amity Dividend is also continued on the basis announced last year.

HE MADE A NOISE LIKE A DUCK

THE WORLD'S GREATEST miler Ray Conger, he doesn't hold the world's record. Even the American one-mile mark is not credited to him. But line him up on the starting line with Ralph Hall, the Oregonian, who holds the American record of 4:12.2-5, and it's dollars to doughnuts that Conger will run Hill dizzy, just like the Illinois pelagius is likely to run the field dizzy here in the Hunter Mile at the B. A. A. if he competes on Saturday night.

You can have your Hill. You can have your Finnish flyers, Nurmi, Louhos, Larva, Pajala. You can have your Jules Lund, a native of France, who holds the world's 1500 meter record. You can have all of 'em. Give us this long, lean, greyhound of an Illinois miling teacher, whose metal has been tested in the most burning competition and assayed pure gold. He runs 'em all dizzy.

No wonder they fall (under the ironical, or Image Breaker. He has topped a whole lot of pedestals. Tasso Nurmi has topped a whole lot of pedestals. Tasso Nurmi has topped a whole lot of pedestals. Tasso Nurmi has topped a whole lot of pedestals.

Uncle Sam boasts the greatest middle distance on this terrestrial globe, our own Ray Chapman of Bates and the B. A. A. the greatest miler in the world, Ray Conger, the greatest high jumper, young George Spitz, N. Y. U. freestyle, the greatest sprinter, hurdler, pole vaulter. The Yankees are striking their athletes dead. John O'Brien can strum his blooming lute once more and, just as he did in past Olympics, sing:

"O'd did our youth, drive home this truth,
To the wide world there and there
The Yankee made is the best much wadder,
In the world of the world."

ARTIE MCGOVERN, Babe Ruth's winter trainer, put one over on the Yankees. He was the one who told the Yankees that Babe Ruth was not a Yankee. He was the one who told the Yankees that Babe Ruth was not a Yankee.

EVERY ONCE IN A while the both talk experts of Izzy Kaplan, demon heart photographer, creep into print. They creep into print and what actually happened. Here's the story of the real deal on Izzy. We were right there on the firing line. It happened in Mexico, on an evening training trip of the Yankees.

FITCHERS SILEM CALDWELL and George McGriddle visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight.

They decided to take them back in Izzy Kaplan's bath tub.

TING HODGE, the outfielder, was detailed to take Izzy to a movie, while the ducks were being washed out by Izzy in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight.

Heating Izzy laugh Izzy thought that was the proper thing to do on Izzy and burst into a roar. That set Izzy right in earnest. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight.

Back to the hotel Izzy went to his room. What those ducks hadn't done isn't worth mentioning. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight. They visited the Yankees in a thrilling fight.

"Yes, yes," insisted Izzy, Quack! Quack! Quack!

Izzy didn't know a duck from a hen, then, but he certainly knew how to make a noise like a duck.

TESTIMONIAL DINNERS are all the rage just now. They have been ordered to Shomo Collins, last night, should have shown the fans are with him. Down in Paterson, N. J., on February 24 the fans are giving another baseball celebrity a combined testimonial and birthday party. Perhaps you have heard of him—Hans Wagner?

Old Honus will be 37 years old on February 24. He broke into baseball with Paterson, which was managed by Ed Barrow, now business manager of the Yankees in New York. He was sold to Louisville and thence went to Pittsburgh. He played National League baseball for 16 years, batting .300 during his whole career. He led the National League in batting average, 1900, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, LET US NOT REPINE!

"This, Too, Will Pass," Said Lincoln

Today, a little more than six-score years ago, Abraham Lincoln was born, in 1809.

On this anniversary of that day of auspicious token for his country we lift up our eyes to the name of Lincoln as unto the hills from whence cometh our help.

It is never in vain that we turn to Lincoln for inspiration, guidance, strength or courage.

So many-sided and all-embracing was his great humanity that we find in the record of his life support and teaching in every period of difficulty or perplexity that besets us.

In its industrial depression, with its resultant unemployment, that weighs down our spirit; or the widespread suffering in the wake of an unprecedented drought that stirs our sympathy to anguish?

Is it the spectacle of world unrest, with the deepening of international hostility, that rises like a phantom before our gaze?

It may be the multiplying signs of demoralized justice, as administered in the courts, and the mounting evidence of contempt for law, which afflict us with misgivings for the country's future.

Again, it may be the contemplation of unregulated corporate power and the steady march of law-defying greed, bending every utility in which the people's interest is supreme into a means of further exploitation of the people; or the feeling that we are oppressed by a burden of taxation, which enlightened policy could alleviate by a more equitable apportionment and distribution.

NO MATTER WHAT IT IS, LET US NOT REPINE.

Let us recall Lincoln's words of simple faith and courage, uttered during the country's darkest hour—when defeat, reverses, disappointments were following each other in appalling succession and the stoutest hearts began to waver.

"THIS, TOO, WILL PASS," said Lincoln.

And his trust in the virtue and intelligence of his people; in their moral presence of mind, when confronted with national peril; in their power to recognize a principle and to serve it with loyalty, carried him through and carried the nation through and saved the union.

Lincoln—O blessed memory!

Well was it said, at his passing, that the common manhood of America had lost a kinsman.

Those Extra Phone Calls

An Illuminating Correspondence

Mr. William H. O'Brien, Director of the Telephone and Telegraph Utilities in this State, objects to the editorial criticism that a system exists under which patrons of the telephone company can be charged for calls which they claim they did not make and of which no record exists.

"Billy" O'Brien is a fine fellow. But he knows, because he is a faithful reader of this newspaper, that this newspaper is in the habit of obtaining and publishing facts which public officials either do not know or have ignored.

It may be informing to him and interesting to our other readers to publish the following letter received FROM THE TELEPHONE COMPANY by a patron who protested against being charged for extra calls and demanded a record of them: "Thank you for the payment of $7.85 which has been credited to your account."

"I am sorry that it will not be possible for me to give you a detail of the 74 extra calls billed you on your November 20 bill, as the call numbers are not recorded on these calls."

"On your service five minutes constitutes one call. Calls used in excess of your monthly allowance are billed to you at 3c each. It is evident that the line was held longer than the 3c minutes' duration, this resulting in over calls."

"If the above information is not satisfactory kindly communicate with me."

Well, the patron communicated with the telephone company again. This is the substance of the letter: "You have given me no information whatsoever, and if I can see any reason for which I should be satisfied you are an optimist indeed."

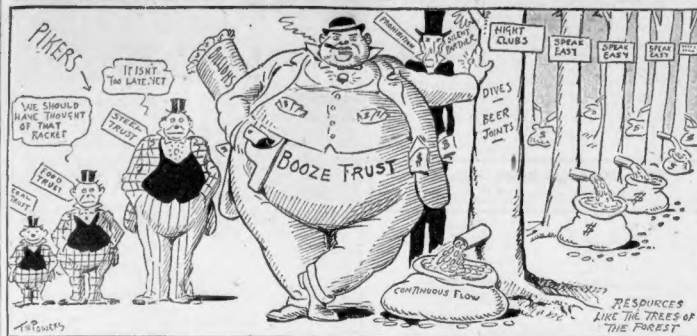

"If I buy a suit of clothes I know what I am buying and paying for. If the grocer sends a bill, it is itemized. 'You send a bill for 24 extra calls which, I protest, were not made, and give me absolutely no accounting of them.'"

"Of course I am not satisfied, and I again ask you to tell me what I have paid for or to refund the payment."

If Mr. O'Brien cannot see any reason for such objection, there are others who do.

THE BIG SHOT

By T. E. Powers

The booze bill of the nation has steadily increased under Prohibition to the astounding total of TWENTY-EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR, one thousand millions MORE than the 1913 total, which was the peak year before the passage of the Dry Amendment.

These figures are supplied by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

They place the Booze Trust as the "Big Shot" of America today.

This is the trust that not only profits but makes the Crime Syndicates profitable; that corrupts dry officials and enforcement agencies; that makes rum running, hijacking, bootlegging so tempting; that nurtures a whole new breed of criminals and causes a score of speakeasies to flourish where one saloon existed before.

THE NUT BROTHERS

New York Day by Day

Tex Guinan
Rudy Vallee

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Broadway's two most extravagantly publicized figures in the past year were Tex Guinan and Rudy Vallee. A clipping bureau's check-up reveals each received 1,000,000 calls that, if paid for at space rates, would total something more than a Texian.

A runner-up for Tex's honors was Legs Diamond. But Texas is the veteran in establishing a page. One half and maintaining it. She is regarded as perpetual copy, especially by tabloids, and is the peg upon which is hung a thousand and one night life feature yarns.

She has no press agent any more. When publicity fires burn low she merely fires off a barrage of typical Guinan "telegram" and usually starts companion in public is his handsome young brother Tommy.

No other Broadway figure has appeared so largely in modern fiction. She has been made the central character in two novels, at least a half hundred short stories and a dozen talkies and legitimate stage productions. Her autobiography is being written.

She has already created an aura of White Way glamour. To the world she has become the lanky, red-haired boyden—the nocturnal waltz cracker with a heart of pure gold. Behind her rowdy "Hello, sucker!" is a mawkish tenderness for the visiting pressmen. And that not.

She is reputed never to have smoked, touched her scarlet pured lips to liquor, and is "good to the folks." The legend goes she leaves the field closeness of her club each day to dance in the clean air of Central Park.

Yet if the prophets are correct Miss Guinan's star in the Broadway heavens is descending. The night club life has spent itself and she is to take off shortly to conduct a club elsewhere. Her popularity is at old solely New Yorkish. Hollywood once boomed her.

There are many stories as to how much wealth Miss Guinan amassed in her reign as a rowdy night club queen. She is reported to have received a jousting in the market. For seasons she has made upward of $2000 a week. Her chief extravagance is poker. She has lived in a modest brick house on 12th st. for years. Her fortune is variously estimated from several hundred thousand to a tabloid million.

Peculiarly no one made a tremendous fortune sponsoring night clubs. Old Legs, who was a former night club king and the most successful of all, did not retire with a particularly large fortune. "Protection money" blots up the big earnings.

In the Tenderloin when some habitude has the rate he is suffering from the heebie-jeebies.

The police that packs the biggest headache these days in the Furioso Forties is a brand of champagne featured in the speakeasies. It is a synthetic concoction that has the sparkling effervescence and tang of a vintage dating back to the year of the Comet. It has fooled the experts. But its next morning results are terrible, producing, among other things, a mild fever.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who horrified his family by stooping to low journalism, is spending most of his time in Arizona, although he maintains a New York office. The family breach has not been closed, although it is reported the young heir has dropped around to the family mansion at intervals to see his former nurse and the rate he is suffering from the heebie-jeebies.

My own Dad maintained the same opinion of journalism until his last few years—regarding it as something like operating the pea and thimble or picking a pocket. And gazing at its present status I often wonder if he wasn't right.

Clipping from the Portland Oregonian.

"Nervous illness to set out, but he is still in the running."

In the running, just like an overripe cornucopia.

Feelings

TROUBLE IS, we moderns. Are always picking at our emotions. Trying to see how we feel. Trying to see if we feel how we feel. If we don't like it—let's stifle it! We're through finished—

OH, try something new. Something that will suit our feelings better. For we're sure—never doubt it—That our feelings are the proper test of action. If our feelings aren't tickled. And kept tickled. Then nix—nothing doing!

Emotions? They're not new in human history—Grandpa had them, so did grandpa—

But weren't supposed to run the job. You had feelings, just as you had inside—

But you didn't make your insides a topic of social conversation. Nor did you let a too shade.

So if your environment bores you,

Or your job doesn't suit you, Or your associates peeve you, Change it—change them—Start over—start different. For it's tragic to ever Let things cramp your style.

Now this, I submit, Is the bunk. Naturally, you're a sap If you don't do the best by yourself. If you jump every time Your feelings squeal. Emotions are necessary. You've had them ever since You were a sand fleck. And if you want to live They're all the guide you need. But man life—that's different. Men became men by getting tired Of living like sand flecks. By dreaming and proping Toward a new ideal. Of lives with purpose. Of lives that got somewhere. Instead of hopping in circles. Like silly sand flecks.

Men became men by developing brains. To ride hard on emotions. And they stop being men And become sand flecks again Whenever they let their feelings Ride hard on their brains.

Holding Companies "Hindenburg Line" Of Greedy Privilege

By Bainbridge Colby

A WITNESS testifying on the stand was asked if he belonged to any secret societies. He replied that he was a member of two—the Knights of Pythias and the Gas Company.

This story has antiquity, but it can readily be brought up to date by substituting The Holding Company for the Gas Company.

The device of a holding company has had a great expansion in the last few years, particularly in the field of public utilities.

Certain advantages are claimed to result from it, such as economy in group purchasing, expert management and expert engineering and construction.

But they are NEGOTIABLE when viewed in connection with the secrecy which shrouds the operations of holding companies, the opportunities for manipulation of profits on intercompany transactions, the irresponsibility of their management and the speculative attitude and controlling interests, all of which are reflected in SOME WAY OR OTHER in the rate base, upon which charges for service to the consuming public are calculated.

These companies have become the "Hindenburg line" of COVETOUS and GREEDY PRIVILEGE. From their law-ward-manned ramparts they openly DERIDE public regulation and snap their fingers in CONTEMPTUOUS DEFERENCE of supervising commissions, whether Federal or State.

The ordinary citizen still has a naive belief that he is protected against extortion on the part of the gas and electric companies, the power companies and such public utilities by public service commissions. He has a simple notion that the utility companies are restricted to a reasonable rate of return upon the amount of their invested capital and that the rates charged cannot be in excess of such reasonable return.

Did we say that this conception on the part of the average man is naive? It is more than that. IT IS GROTESQUE.

The local company which Mr. Citizen thinks is making and supplying his power or his light is NOT under the direction and control of its own officers or managers.

With a negligible exception, the local plant is owned, controlled and directed by a holding company, situated usually in some financial center remote from the actual scene of its operations.

Does the local company receive and appropriate its earnings to the company's necessities? NO.

Does it finance its extensions of plant? NO.

Does it do such engineering work as the nature of its operations requires? NO.

Does it conduct its own accounting? NO.

This is a subject of vital importance, because upon the accuracy and good faith of its accounting depends the rates it can charge consumers for its service.

Does the operating company buy its own materials and equipment? NO.

Does a report to the Public Service Commission by the operating company disclose the TRUE facts about its investment and its earnings; their use and apportionment to the needs of the operating company? NO.

All these things are done by the holding company. All these services are the basis of heavy charges by the holding company to the operating company.

Thus the customary "general service" or "management supervision fee" of one of the largest holding companies is 25% of the GROSS receipts of each subsidiary company. The fees of its subsidiary construction companies amount to as much as 50% of the sums expended in construction.

The holding company charges the operating company for its "consulting engineering services" and a special engineering fee for design work, when executed by the supervised companies.

The cost of rendering these services and the profits earned therefrom are not disclosed.

Even Federal investigation is DEFIED on the plea that these matters "constitute trade secrets."

The efforts of the Federal Trade Commission to ascertain these hidden costs, which are such convenient taps and sluices for the earnings of the operating company, have been denounced as unauthoritative and involving illegal compulsory disclosure of private matters.

In 1928, 81.9% of the total electrical energy produced in the United States was generated by companies under holding company control. This percentage has since increased, as there is a constant extension of control over independent operating units.

Is not this a "super-government," in very truth? Have not the people of the United States, in a precise sense, become merely another "subsidiary" of this vast holding company, which reaches from ONE END OF THE COUNTRY TO THE OTHER?

It is unthinkable that the holding companies can continue indefinitely to assert their irresponsible detachment from public functions, which they practically direct and control, including an exemption from State or Federal supervision.

They will not be suffered to cover their operations with secrecy—OPERATIONS WHICH VITALLY AFFECT THE PUBLIC INTEREST.
